The India-US deal in a changing world

Last week's interim trade agreement between the United States and India marks a significant shift in the global trade landscape, with implications that extend well beyond the two countries. Under the joint statement issued on February 6, 2026, the United States agreed to reduce its reciprocal tariff on Indian goods from 25 per cent to 18pc,

THE NEWS INTERNATIONAL

Incentives without reform

Pakistan's export sector has long been trapped in a low-competitiveness equilibrium, high costs, thin margins, policy uncertainty and a narrow product and market base. Against this backdrop, the prime minister's industrial and export incentive package announced on January 30, 2026 is both timely and politically significant.

Clean energy: what we hand over to next generation

ISLAMABAD: In Pakistan, clean energy is often framed as a climate obligation – a commitment made in international forums, discussed in policy papers, and debated in technical terms. But this framing misses the central economic and human dimension. Clean energy is not merely an environmental concern.

Gold outside the system

KARACHI: Here is an out-of-the-box economic policy action. Across Pakistan and global financial markets, gold and silver have once again become the centre of investor attention. The recent surge in prices is not driven by speculation alone,
